ПЕРЕДМОВА

Вивчення іноземних мов, особливо англійської, є невід’ємним компонентом сучасної вітчизняної вищої освіти, яка рухається у напрямку інтеграції до європейського освітнього простору й, відповідно, вимагає модернізації та фундаменталізації фахової іншомовної підготовки майбутнього фахівця. Це передбачає вивчення англійської мови за професійним спрямуванням, що безпосередньо пов’язано із майбутнім фахом студентів.

Навчальні завдання укладено відповідно до навчальної і робочої програм. Структурно вони містять 13 текстів із галузі «Право» й післятекстові завдання, які передбачають закріплення й активізацію вокабуляру, винесеного в передтекстові завдання, що полегшує студентам опрацювання тексту й засвоєння лексики, повторення граматичного матеріалу. Основна увага зосереджена на засвоєнні термінології, що здійснюється на основі виконання комплексу вправ, знання якої є важливою передумовою успішного спілкування у професійній сфері. Вправи укладено в порядку зростання їх складності.

Навчальні завдання включають також два додатки, які містять перелік найбільш уживаних фразових дієслів (phrasal verbs) і скорочень (abbreviations) у правовому дискурсі сучасної англійської мови.

Виконання поданих завдань допоможе студентам поглибити знання з англійської мови за професійним спрямуванням, сприятиме формуванню їх мовленнєвої культури, глибшому засвоєнню професійної термінології, умінню аналізувати і синтезувати отриману інформацію з майбутньої професійної сфери.

Навчальні завдання розроблено для студентів першого курсу напрямку підготовки «Право».

Text 1. Law

Law is a body of official rules and regulations. It is generally found in constitutions, legislation and judicial decisions. Law is used to govern a society and to control the behavior of its members. The nature and functions of law have varied throughout history. In modern societies, some authorized body such as a legislature or a court makes the law. It is supported by the coercive power of the state, which enforces the law by means of appropriate penalties or remedies.

Formal legal rules and actions are usually distinguished from other means of social control and guides for behavior such as morality, public opinion, and custom or tradition. Of course, a lawmaker may respond to public opinion or other pressures, and a formal law may prohibit what is morally unacceptable.

Law serves a variety of functions, basic of which are:

1. Keeping the peace.
2. Enforcing standards of conduct and maintaining order.
3. Facilitating planning.
4. Promoting social justice.

Laws against crimes, for example, help to maintain a peaceful, orderly, relatively stable society. Courts contribute to social stability by resolving disputes in a civilized fashion. Property and contract laws facilitate business activities. Laws limit the powers of government and help to provide some degree of freedom that would not otherwise be possible. Law has also been used as a mechanism for social change; e.g. at various times laws have been passed to improve the quality of individual life in matters of health, education, and welfare.

Law is not completely made by humans; it also includes natural law. The best-known version of this view, that God's law is supreme, has had considerable influence in the U.S. and other western societies. Muslim societies also embrace a kind of natural law, which is closely linked to the religion of Islam.

I. Answer the questions.

1. Which documents usually explicate law?
2. In what way is law enforced in the life of the society?
3. What are the basic functions of law?
4. Which branch of law regulates business activities?
5. How can law be a mechanism of social regulations?

II. Are these statements true or false according to the text?

1. Law can usually be found in legends and rituals.
2. The nature of law has never changed throughout the whole history of the humanity.
3. State provides appropriate tools to enforce law.
4. A lawmaker never responds public opinion.
5. The power of government is limited by law.

III. Insert the proper word into the following sentences and explain its meaning with the help of the dictionary.

1. Law is a body of ... rules and regulations.
2. Law is used to ... a society and to control the behavior of its members.
3. A ... may respond to public opinion or other pressures.
4. Laws against ... help to maintain an orderly society.
5. Law is also a mechanism for ... change.

IV. Find a proper definition for the following words.

- | | |
|----------------|--|
| 1) legislation | a) a thing or things belonging to someone |
| 2) crime | b) the process of making or enacting laws |
| 3) rule | c) the aggregate of people living together in a more or less ordered community |
| 4) society | d) an action or omission which constitutes an offence and is punishable by law |
| 5) property | e) one of a set of explicit or understood regulations or principles governing conduct or procedure |

V. Put the verb into the correct tense form.

1. Law (to help) to maintain a peaceful, orderly, relatively stable society.
2. Lawmakers (to respond) public opinion.
3. Laws (to be made) not completely by humans.
4. Society (to be governed) by law.
5. Law (to limit) the power of government.

VI. Give a short summary of the text in English.

VII. Retell the text.

Text 2. Development of Law

Law develops as society evolves. Historically, the simplest societies were tribal. The members of the tribe were bonded together initially by kinship and worship of the same gods. Even in the absence of courts and legislature there was law – a blend of customs, morality, religion, and magic. The visible authority was the ruler, or chief; the highest authorities were the gods whose will was revealed in the forces of nature and in the revelations of the tribal head or the priest. Wrongs against the tribe, such as sacrilege or breach of tribal customs, were met with group sanctions, and, the tribe members thought, with the wrath of the gods. People appeased the gods in ritualistic ceremonies ending perhaps in sacrifice or expulsion of the wrongdoer. Wrongs against individuals, such as murder, theft, adultery, or failure to repay a debt, were avenged by the family of the victim, often in actions against the family of the wrongdoer. Revenge of this kind was based on tribal custom, a major component of early law.

Tribal society gradually evolved into territorial confederations. Governmental structures emerged, and modern law began to take shape. The most significant historical example is Roman law, which influenced most of the legal systems of the world.

The common-law systems of England, and later of the U.S., developed in a different manner. Before the Norman Conquest (1066), England was a loose confederation of societies, the laws of which were largely tribal and local. The Anglo-Norman rules created a system of centralized courts that operated under a single set of laws. This legal system, known as the common law of England, began with common customs, but over time, it involved the courts in lawmaking (in response to changes in society).

I. Answer the questions.

1. By what were the members of the tribe bonded together?
2. What were the highest authorities during the tribal age?
3. What were possible wrongs against the tribe?
4. Which legal system influenced the law of many countries?
5. When did the Norman Conquest of England happen?

II. Are these statements true or false according to the text?

1. Tribesmen were bonded together by constitution.
2. The simplest societies were based on slavery.

3. Vengeance was often used in primitive societies.
4. In 1066 England was invaded by Saxons.
5. The legal system of the USA developed on the English basis.

III. Insert the proper word into the following sentences and explain its meaning with the help of the dictionary.

1. Law develops as ... evolves.
2. ... was a blend of customs, morality, religion, and magic.
3. Wrongs against the tribe were met with group
4. ... was based on tribal custom.

| 2) tribe | b) the system of rules which a particular country or community recognizes as regulating the actions of its members |
| 3) system | c) the action or crime of stealing |
| 4) conquest | d) a social division in a traditional society consisting of families |
| 5) theft | e) the act or an instance of conquering or the state of having been conquered |

V. Put the verb into the correct tense form.

1. The first law systems (to develop) long ago.
2. Kinship (to bond) together the members of the primitive societies.
3. England (to be conquered) by Normans in 1066.
4. Most modern legal systems (to be influenced) by Roman law.
5. The common law of England (to begin) to develop after the Norman Conquest.

VI. Give a short summary of the text in English.

Text 3. Legal Profession

The legal profession is changing and responding positively to the outside world. The future demands greater professional responsibility and self-management skills to succeed. The better and informed future lawyers – judges, prosecutors, notaries, investigators in Ukraine, barristers and solicitors in the United Kingdom – are, the more aware they are of their strengths and ambitions, the more they will be able to manage future career opportunities.

The legal profession is driven both by the changing needs of the client and by government policy and new legislature frameworks. Lawyers need to ensure that services and standards are properly regulated, maintained and enhanced.

The legal profession is increasingly international – global economy, the EU influence different aspects of life of a European lawyer. Many lawyers deal with international business and clients now. In the UK, it tends to be solicitors who work for international law firms, but barristers may also be representing international clients.

Increased competition is a growing aspect of the legal profession. Clients look for high-quality specialist services. Within the legal profession in the UK there is a healthy competition between solicitors and barristers.

Information technology is an inescapable fact of modern life. You can't get away from IT – you ought to be, and need to be, computer literate. You have to depend on relevant IT solutions – the legal profession here is no exception. Expect to make good use of specialist software packages and other IT services for research and client support as part of your everyday job.

As a prospective lawyer you will need to consider your options carefully:

- where do I train – what is a best course and training opportunity for me?
- what branch of the profession and areas of law do I eventually want to practice in and what are the opportunities?

You should be starting to ask yourself these questions now. Remember that as well as academic excellence, employers place a premium on good communication and teamwork skills combined with professional awareness.

I. Answer the questions.

1. Why is the legal profession constantly changing?
2. What does the future demand from the lawyer?
3. What do the lawyers need to ensure?
4. Why is the legal profession called international?
5. What is the influence of the information technologies?

II. Are these statements true or false according to the text?

1. The legal profession always remains the same.
2. Barristers and solicitors can be found in Ukraine.
3. Services and standards should be properly regulated.
4. Competition is an important aspect of the legal profession.
5. The importance of the IT is rapidly increasing.

III. Insert the proper word into the following sentences and explain its meaning with the help of the dictionary.

1. The ... profession is changing and responding positively to the outside world.

Text 4. Solicitor or Barrister?

You can't live without the people who are in legal profession. The legal profession becomes more numerous internationally. The solicitor is the first point of contact with the law for a person who needs the services of lawyer in the UK. The solicitor listens carefully to the client to make sure their needs are clearly understood and then explains the legal position and gives advice. By contrast, barristers will only see the client in the company of a briefing solicitor. The barrister is the specialist with particular abilities to do well in advocacy, a consultant who will examine the case and decide what line to take in court. There are only a few solicitors who have chances to present cases in the higher courts. Much more solicitors spend much of their time in an office making investigations, giving advice to clients and preparing documents for counsel. A barrister spends much time either in a courtroom or preparing his arguments for the court. Barristers are self-employed in the independent Bar. Solicitors are normally salaried and may be offered a share in the profits of the practice if they turn out successfully. There is a healthy contest between solicitors and barristers.

The Bar is a small but influential independent body with just over 8,000 practicing barristers in over 400 chambers in England and Wales. In addition, there are about 2,000 barristers employed as in-house lawyers. The Bar is an advocacy profession. The work divides equally between civil and criminal law.

But many people believe the distinction between barristers and solicitors should be eliminated in England, as has already happened in Australia. The government is considering various proposals, but there are for keeping in existence, as well as removing, the division.

Neither kind of lawyer needs a university qualification. The vast majority of barristers and most solicitors do in fact go to university, but they do not necessarily study law there. This arrangement is typically British.

I. Answer the questions.

1. What is the first point of contact with law in the UK?
2. Who usually represents the client in the courtroom?
3. Which kind of a lawyer usually gets salary?
4. What is the number of barristers in GB?
5. Is a university diploma strictly required for a lawyer in Britain?

II. Are these statements true or false according to the text?

1. Solicitors and barristers have the same functions.
2. Barristers and solicitors can be found all over the world.
3. Solicitors usually provide the first step in most legal cases.
4. Barristers usually represent client's interests in the court.

5. Many people believe the distinction between barristers and solicitors should be eliminated in England.

III. Insert the proper word into the following sentences and explain its meaning with the help of the dictionary.

1. The ... is the first point of contact with the law for a person.
2. The ... is the specialist with particular abilities to do well in advocacy.

Text 1. Types of Crimes

A crime is defined as any act that is contrary to legal code or laws.

Crimes against persons, also called personal crimes, include murder, aggravated assault, rape, and robbery. Personal crimes are unevenly distributed in the United States, with young, urban, poor, and racial minorities committing these crimes more than others.

Property crimes involve theft of property without bodily harm, such as burglary, larceny, auto theft, and arson. Like personal crimes, young, urban, poor, and racial minorities generally commit these crimes more than others.

Crimes against morality are also called victimless crimes because there is not complainant, or victim. Prostitution, illegal gambling, and illegal drug use are all examples of victimless crimes.

White-collar crimes are crimes that are committed by people of high social status who commit their crimes in the context of their occupation. This includes embezzling (stealing money from one's employer), insider trading, and tax evasion and other violations of income tax laws. White-collar crimes generally generate less concern in the public mind than other types of crime, however in terms of total dollars; white-collar crimes are even more consequential for society. Nonetheless, these crimes are generally the least investigated and least prosecuted.

Organized crime is crime committed by structured groups typically involving the distribution of illegal goods and services to others. Many people think of the Mafia when they think of organized crime, but the term can refer to any group that exercises control over large illegal enterprises (such as the drug trade, illegal gambling, prostitution, weapons smuggling, or money laundering).

I. Answer the questions.

1. How can crime be defined?
2. Which crimes are called personal crimes?
3. What crimes can be defined as victimless?
4. Which crimes are the least investigated?
5. How do we call the crimes committed by structured groups?

II. Are these statements true or false according to the text?

1. A thought or intention can be called 'a crime'.
2. Personal crimes include robbery.
3. Murder belongs to property crimes.
4. White-collar crimes are committed by high-rank officials.
5. Illegal gambling is usually controlled by organized groups.

III. Insert the proper word into the following sentences and explain its meaning with the help of the dictionary.

1. ... are made against a person.
2. Crimes are often committed among ... people.
3. A ... crime is a crime without direct victim.
4. Organized criminal groups are sometimes called ...

Text 2. Crime Investigation

Forensic science and scientific expertise serve the administration of justice by providing scientific support in the investigation of crime and providing evidence to the courts. Scientific expertise is available on a case-by-case basis to different law enforcement agencies. It is very important during investigation of many crimes, particularly fires where arson is suspected, cases involving DNA profiling and offences involving the use of firearms.

The scientists have a wide range of experience in fire-scene examination, incl. fatal fires in domestic premises, large industrial fires and vehicle fires.

DNA profiling is a revolutionary scientific testing process, which can positively identify an individual from a specimen of blood, hair roots, tissue, etc. Its application to crime specimens represents the greatest advance in forensic science in decades. The vast potential of DNA profiling is recognized by the police and the legal profession, and its use in criminal investigation has increased.

Forensic science experts provide advice on firearms and related matters and assistance in the investigation of shooting incidents. When presented with a suspect weapon, the expert is able to establish whether or not it was the weapon used in a crime. Experts are particularly adept in the microscopic examination of spent bullets and cartridge cases.

The expert also use fingerprints, method of identification using the impression made by the ridge patterns found on the fingertips. No two persons have exactly the same arrangement of ridge patterns, and the patterns of any one individual remain unchanged through life. Fingerprints may be classified and filed on the basis of the ridge patterns, setting up an identification system that is almost infallible.

I. Answer the questions.

1. What is the task of the forensic science?
2. What is DNA profiling?
3. Which specimen are used in DNA profiling?
4. Which procedures are used in firearms expertise?
5. Can two different persons have the same fingerprints?

II. Are these statements true or false according to the text?

1. Scientific expertise provides scientific support in the investigation of crimes.
2. DNA profiling is a long-existing procedure.
3. Only blood specimen can be used in DNA profiling.
4. The microscopic examination of spent bullets is used in firearms expertise.
5. Fingerprints change when a person gets older.

III. Insert the proper word into the following sentences and explain its meaning with the help of the dictionary.

1. Scientific ... is available on a case-by-case basis to different law enforcement agencies.
2. ... profiling is a revolutionary scientific testing process.
3. ... science experts provide advice on firearms and related matters.
4. The experts also use ... , method of identification using the impression made by the ridge patterns found on the fingertips.
5. No two persons have exactly the same arrangement of ridge

Text 3. Fingerprints

Very many books and scientific papers have been published on the subject of fingerprints and the reference to “the prints from man’s hand” can even be found in the Bible.

The first recorded use of fingerprints was by the ancient Assyrians and Chinese for the signing of legal documents. The study of the application of fingerprints for useful forensic purposes was recorded in the latter part of the 17th century when, in 1684, the anatomist Doctor N. Grew published a paper on the subject which he illustrated with drawings of various fingerprints patterns. About the same period, in Italy, Prof. Malpigni was investigating the functions of the skin.

The use of fingerprints for identification purposes was proposed late in the 19th century by the British scientist Sir Francis Galton, who wrote a detailed study of fingerprints in which he presented a new classification system using prints of all ten fingers, which is the basis of identification systems still in use. Subsequently, the use of fingerprinting as a means for identifying criminals spread rapidly throughout Europe and the US, superseding the old system of identification by means of body measurements.

One of the cases involving the use of fingerprints identification was in 1905, when a thumb print left on a cash box at the scene of a murder in Deptford of shopkeepers Mr. and Mrs. Farrow, was identified as belongs to Alfred Stratton, one of two brothers. As a result they were jointly charged with the crime and subsequently hanged.

As crime-detection methods improved, law enforcement officers found that any smooth, hard surface touched by a human hand would yield fingerprints made by the oily secretion present on the skin. When these so-called latent prints were dusted with powder or chemically treated, the identifying fingerprint pattern could be seen and photographed or otherwise preserved. Today, law enforcement agencies can also use computers to digitally record fingerprints and to transmit them electronically to other agencies for comparison. By comparing fingerprints at the scene of a crime with the fingerprint record of suspected persons, officials can establish absolute proof of the presence or identity of a person.

I. Answer the questions.

1. When was the first recorded use of fingerprints?
2. When were they first used for forensic purposes?
3. Who proposed the use of fingerprints for identification purposes?
4. In what way did crime-detection methods improve?
5. How can fingerprints be preserved nowadays?

II. Are these statements true or false according to the text?

1. The first recorded use of fingerprints was by the ancient Egyptians for the signing of legal documents.
2. Sir Francis Galton was the first to study fingerprints.
3. During the 17th century fingerprints were studied only in Italy.
4. Americans were the first to use fingerprints in crime investigation.
5. Nowadays fingerprints can be preserved digitally.

III. Insert the proper word into the following sentences and explain its meaning with the help of the dictionary.

1. The first recorded use of ... was by the ancient Assyrians and Chinese.
2. The study of the ... of fingerprints for useful forensic purposes was recorded in the latter part of the 17th century.

Text 4. Police

Police is an agency of a community or government that is responsible for maintaining public order and preventing and detecting crime. The basic police mission – preserving order by enforcing rules of conduct or laws – was the same in ancient societies as it is in sophisticated urban environments.

The conception of the police force as a protective and law enforcement organization developed from the use of military bodies as guardians of the peace, such as the Praetorian Guard of ancient Rome. The Romans achieved a high level of law enforcement, which remained in effect until the decline of the empire and the onset of the Middle Ages. Beginning in the 5th century, policing became a function of the heads of fiefdoms and principalities.

During the Middle Ages, policing authority, particularly in England, was the responsibility of local nobles on their individual estates. Each noble generally appointed an official, known as a constable, to carry out the law. The constable's duties included keeping the peace and arresting and guarding criminals.

In France during the 17th century King Louis XIV maintained a small central police organization consisting of some 40 inspectors who, with the help of numerous paid informants, supplied the government with details about the conduct of private individuals. The king could then exercise a kind of summary justice as he saw fit. After the French Revolution, two separate police bodies were set up, one to handle ordinary duties and the other to deal with political crimes.

In 1663 the city of London began paying watchmen (generally old men who were unable to find other work) to guard the streets at night. Until the end of the 18th century, the watchmen as well as a few constables remained the only form of policing in the city.

The inability of watchmen and constables to curb lawlessness, particularly in London, led to a demand for a more effective force to deal with criminals and to protect the populace. After much deliberation in Parliament, the British statesman Sir Robert Peel in 1829 established London Metropolitan Police, which became the world's first modern organized police force. The development of the British police system is especially significant because the pattern that emerged not only became a model for the American police system but also had great influence on the style of policing in almost all industrial societies.

I. Answer the questions.

1. What is police?
2. What is the basic police mission?
3. How were guardians called in ancient Rome?
4. Who provided policing authority in England in the Middle Ages?
5. Which date is considered to be the beginning of the modern police?

II. Are these statements true or false according to the text?

1. Praetorians were civilian volunteers.
2. First patrolling of London started in 1663.
3. The nobility provided order in the Middle Ages.
4. London Metropolitan police was established by R. Peel.
5. The British police became a model for the American police.

III. Insert the proper word into the following sentences and explain its meaning with the help of the dictionary.

1. ... is an agency of a community or government that is responsible for maintaining public order
2. The basic police ... was the same in ancient societies as it is in sophisticated urban environments.
3. During the Middle Ages, policing authority was the responsibility of local ... on their individual estates.

Text 5. The Police Officer

The British police officer – sometimes called “the bobby” after Sir Robert Peel, the founder of the police force – is a well-known figure to everybody who has visited Britain or who has seen British films. Policemen are to be seen in towns or cities keeping law and order, either walking in the streets (“pounding the beat”) or driving in cars (known as “panda cars” because of their distinctive markings).

To be a policeman means doing beat work, wearing a uniform and working in a small area of London, preventing crime and arresting criminals.

In most countries the police carry guns. The British police generally do not keep firearms, except in Northern Ireland. Only a few police officers are regularly armed – for example, those who guard politicians and diplomats or who patrol airports.

I. Answer the questions.

1. How is the British police officer called sometimes?
2. Who was the founder of the Metropolitan police?
3. What are the tasks of the policemen?
4. Why do they call police vehicles 'panda cars'?
5. In what part of the UK do police officers carry guns?

II. Are these statements true or false according to the text?

1. British policemen are often called 'tommy'.
2. Sir R. Peel was the founder of London police.
3. 'Pounding the beat' is a kind of entertainment.
4. Policemen usually wear uniform.
5. The policemen in the UK carry guns only in Northern Ireland.

Text 1. The Prosecutor's Office

Prosecutor is a government official charged with bringing defendants in criminal cases to justice in the name of the state. Although responsibilities vary from one jurisdiction to another, many prosecutors are in charge of all phases of a criminal proceedings, from investigation by the police through trial and beyond to all levels of appeal. Many also defend the state in civil actions. In the UK prosecution is carried out in the name of the crown. In this sense the crown can be said to prosecute, and the prosecution is often referred to as “the crown”.

According to the Constitution of Ukraine, the Prosecutor's Office of Ukraine constitutes a unified system that is entrusted with:

- 1) prosecution in court on behalf of the State;
- 2) representation of the interests of a citizen or of the State in court in cases determined by law;
- 3) supervision of the observance of laws by bodies that conduct detective and search activity, inquiry and pre-trial investigation;
- 4) supervision of the observance of laws in the execution of judicial decisions in criminal cases, and also in application of other measures of coercion related to the restraint of personal liberty of citizens.

The Prosecutor's Office of Ukraine is headed by the Prosecutor General of Ukraine, who is appointed to office with the consent of the Verkhovna Rada of Ukraine, and dismissed from office by the President of Ukraine. The Verkhovna Rada of Ukraine may express no confidence in the Prosecutor General of Ukraine that results in his or her resignation from office. The term of authority of the Prosecutor General of Ukraine is five years.

In the UK the Crown Prosecution Service is responsible for prosecuting people charged with a criminal offence. As the principal prosecuting authority in England and Wales, it is responsible for:

- advising the police on cases for possible prosecution;
- reviewing cases submitted by the police;
- preparing cases for court;
- presentation of cases at court.

The head of the Crown Prosecution Service is the Director of Public Prosecutions. The Director of Public Prosecutions reports to the Attorney General, who holds Parliamentary responsibility for the Service. The Crown Prosecution Service employs approximately 7,700 staff including lawyers and administrators. These key personnel are located throughout the country and handle over 1.3 million magistrates' court cases and 115,000 Crown court cases every year. The Crown Prosecution Service started operating in 1986 when the Prosecution of Offences Act (1985) became law. Before this time local police forces were responsible for deciding whether to prosecute particular cases.

I. Answer the questions.

1. What are the prosecutor's responsibilities?

Text 2. Punishment

There are several kinds of punishment available to court. In civil cases the most common punishment is fine. For criminal offences fines are also often used when the offence is not a very serious one and when the offender has not been in trouble before. Another kind of punishment available in some countries is community service. This requires the offender to certain amount of unpaid work, usually for a social institution such as hospital. For more serious crimes the usual punishment is imprisonment.

Some prison sentences are suspended: the offender is not sent to prison if he keeps out of trouble for a fixed period of time, but if he does offend again both suspended sentence and any new one will be imposed. The lengths of sentences vary from a few days to a lifetime. However, a life sentence may allow the prisoner to be released after a suitably long period if a review (parole) board agrees his detention no longer serves a purpose. In some countries, such as the Netherlands, living conditions in prison are fairly good because it is felt that deprivation of liberty is punishment in itself and should so be reduced that the prisoner deters the possibility of the re-education and reforming himself. In other countries, conditions are rather bad. Britain and the USA are trying to solve the shortage of space by allowing private companies to open prisons.

In some countries there is also corporal punishment (physical). In Saudi Arabia theft and possession of alcohol may be punished by cutting off the offender's hand or foot. They believe that it deters others from committing such crimes.

The ultimate penalty is death. But many countries have abolished it or ceased to use the death penalty because the innocent people can be executed by mistake.

I. Answer the questions.

1. What kinds of punishment are mentioned in the text?
2. What punishment is the most common in civil cases?
3. What does the 'community service' require from the offender?
4. What does it mean: 'some prison sentences are suspended'?
5. Why do some countries have abolished the ultimate penalty death?

II. Are these statements true or false according to the text?

1. Fines are not used for criminal offences.
2. Serious crimes foresee for the offender to be sentenced to death penalty in all countries.
3. Prison sentence can be suspended when the offender does not get in trouble for certain period of time.
4. The length of sentences differs according to the seriousness of the crime.
5. Living conditions in prisons are very bad in all countries.

Text 3. The Courts

The courts serve as the venue where disputes are settled and justice is administered. With regard to criminal justice, there are a number of critical people in any court setting. They are referred to as the courtroom work group including the judge, prosecutor, and the defense attorney. The judge is a person, elected or appointed, who is knowledgeable in the law, and whose function is to objectively administer the legal proceedings and offer a final decision to dispose of a case.

In the U.S. and in a growing number of nations, guilt or innocence is decided through the adversarial system. In this system, two parties will both offer their version of events and argue their case before the court. The case should be decided in favor of the party who offers the most sound and compelling arguments based on the law.

The prosecutor is a lawyer who brings charges against a person, persons or corporate entity. It is the prosecutor's duty to explain to the court what crime was committed and to detail what evidence has been found which incriminates the accused.

A defense attorney counsels the accused on the legal process, likely outcomes for the accused and suggests strategies. It is the defense attorney's duty to represent the interests of the client, raise procedural and evidentiary issues, and hold the prosecution to its burden of proving guilt beyond a reasonable doubt.

The final determination of guilt or innocence is typically made by a third party, who is supposed to be disinterested. This function may be performed by a judge, a panel of judges, or a jury panel composed of unbiased citizens.

I. Answer the questions.

1. What are the main functions of the court?
2. Who belongs to the courtroom work group?
3. What are the judge's duties?
4. What does the adversarial system mean?
5. What are the defense attorney's duties?

Text 4. The Lawyer

Advocate, in law, is a person who is professionally qualified to plead the cause of another in a court of law. As a technical term, advocate is used mainly in those legal systems that derived from the Roman law. In Scotland the word refers particularly to a member of the bar of Scotland, the Faculty of Advocates. In France avocats were formerly an organized body of pleaders. In Germany, until the distinction between counsellor and pleader was abolished in 1879, the Advokat was the adviser rather than the pleader. The term has traditionally been applied to pleaders in courts of canon law, and thus in England those who practiced before the courts of civil and canon law were called advocates. In the United States the term advocate has no special significance, being used interchangeably with such terms as attorney, counsel, or lawyer.

A lawyer is trained and licensed to prepare, manage, and either prosecute or defend a court action as an agent for another and who also gives advice on legal matters that may or may not require court action.

A lawyer applies the law to specific cases. He investigates the facts and the evidence by conferring with his client and reviewing documents, and he prepares and files the pleadings in court. At the trial he introduces evidence, interrogates witnesses, and argues questions of law and fact. If he does not win the case, he may seek a new trial or relief in an appellate court.

In many instances, a lawyer can bring about the settlement of a case without trial through negotiation, reconciliation, and compromise. In addition, the law gives individuals the power to arrange and determine their legal rights in many matters and in various ways, as through wills, contracts, or corporate bylaws, and the lawyer aids in many of these arrangements.

A lawyer has several loyalties in his work. They include that to his client, to the administration of justice, to the community, to his associates in practice, and to himself. When these loyalties conflict, the standards of the profession are intended to effect reconciliation.

Legal practice varies from country to country. In England lawyers are divided into barristers, who plead in the higher courts, and solicitors, who do office work and plead in the lower courts. In the United States attorneys often specialize in limited areas of law such as criminal, divorce, corporate, probate, or personal injury, though many are involved in general practice.

In Ukraine, the advocates act to ensure the right to a defense against accusation and to provide legal assistance in deciding cases in courts and other state bodies.

In addition to these professional groups there are nonprofessional legal counsellors who give advice on various legal problems and are often employed by business firms. In almost all civil-law countries there are notaries, who have exclusive rights to deal with such office work as marriage settlements and wills.

In Germany the chief distinction is between lawyers and notaries. The German attorney, however, plays an even smaller courtroom role than the French avocat. Attorneys are often restricted to practice before courts in specific territories. There are further restrictions in that certain attorneys practice only before appeals courts, often necessitating a new attorney for each level of litigation. In Germany lawyers are employed in the administration of government to a greater extent than in common-law countries.

In France numerous types of professionals and even non-professionals handle various aspects of legal work. The most prestigious is the avocat, who is equal in rank to a magistrate or law professor. Roughly comparable to the English barrister, the avocat's main function is to plead in court.
